The Library Web Page

Find Articles

Use this section to find databases. Databases are collections of thousands of magazines, newspapers and journals that are completely searchable. Check out the library's Database Guide for tips and suggestions for using this tool.

Find Books

While most of our library books are available only at the library, you can get many of them as electronic books and read them online. Simply search the library catalog and select the option to search for electronic books.

Research Tools

This section has guides to help you create your works cited page. The citation guide is an overview of how to cite your work. RefWorks is a tool to help you create a works cited page. Check out the RefWorks guide for help getting started with it.

There are also tools to help you research (Subject Guides) and to help you use library resources.

TexShare

If we don't have a book that you need, you can see the closest library that does carry that book by checking out worldcat.org. With your TexShare card (available through the library) you have borrowing privileges with many local libraries, including public libraries. You can find participating libraries through www.texshare.edu.

InterLibrary Loan

One library can't hold everything you'll need for research, so they often borrow from each other. You can use interlibrary loan to get articles or books that aren't easy to find locally. Request an item by filling out the ILL Forms. For the most part, ILL materials are free.

Reliable research, fast access

What the library offers

Many of your classes will require detailed research as part of the curriculum. This allows you to learn new information, understand theories in your field, and synthesize many concepts into your personal approach to your future profession.

Research doesn't end with a Google search, though. To get scholarly, verified information, you'll need to read peer-reviewed information. You can get these from the West Library's online periodicals and eBooks.
